

Panel 09

PODS AND SUPERPODS

Orcas live in close-knit communities known as pods, made up of mothers and their children.

Fathers tend to come from different pods.

Resident orcas have especially close family ties. The Southern Residents have three distinct pods. We call them J, K and L.

Each lives and hunts separately and has its own habits, language and territory.